Commissioners may sue

A group of Wayne County Charter Commissioners met last night to discuss the feasibility of entering a lawsuit to stop the top echelon in the Wayne County Road Commission from organizing a union.

"We're meeting to see whether we can initiate a case against the Road Commissioners who are attempting to organize a union and preserve their salaries," said Bart Berg, who served as Charter Commissioner from District 27.

"My personal feelings are that they, the Wayne County Road Commission, is attempting to circumvent the intent of the newly adopted charter."

Nice time for a trip, right?

The Romulus seniors are planning a trip to the World's Fair scheduled for this summer in Knoxville. The round trip via a motorcoach includes two nights lodging in Nashville, admission to Opryland, reserved seating at the Grand Ole Opry, and one night's lodging in Knoxville and one day admission to the World's Fair.

There is a $250 double occupancy price tag and a $25 deposit when you sign up. For further information, contact Marilyn at the Romulus Senior Center at 941-0666.

With a song

There's a song in their heart and since they want to make sure that no one steals their material, so the Michigan Songwriters Association is hosting its inaugural seminar on March 13 from noon to 3 p.m. at the Schoolcraft College Liberal Arts Theatre, 18600 Haggerty Rd.

Songwriters, music publishers, record producers and copyright laws will be discussed during the seminar. For further information, contact Shirley A. Johnson at 862-8220.

Business community honors its top citizen

"It is a shame," said Doug Baum, "that the people of Romulus do not know what Carl W. Morris has done not only for our community but for the entire State of Michigan."

Saturday night, the people, the state and Washington heard and applauded the accomplishments of the 66-year-old local businessman who was the recipient of the 1981 Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce's "Business Person of the Year Award."

More than 250 friends and dignitaries, including Cong. William Ford (D-15th) and Mayor William Oakley were on hand to laud Morris who became the third man in as many years to receive the coveted accolades.

"The interesting note," Baum said, "is that the three finalists for this award had a total number of years involved in Romulus — living in or having a business in Romulus — of 160 years. We had three excellent candidates and Carl was definitely outstanding." Baum was last year's recipient; Bill Simonds, owner of Bilmar's Supermarket, received the inaugural award.

Morris is the founder and chairman of the Board at Huron Valley Oil Company which has several stations locally, as well as in Huron Township, Wayne, and Flat Rock. Born in Romulus, Carl is a fourth generation of the Morris family whose history locally date back to 1847.

In 1939, Carl went into partnership with Fred Hay, a partnership that blossomed and remained intact for 41 years. Then, in 1971, Carl went into business with his sons. He founded and is still president of the board of the Huron Valley Oil Company.

Morris was elected to the Romulus School Board in 1947, serving in various board positions for 28 years and he is mainly responsible for many of the changes in the community school district. As a novice on the board, he was privileged to be sent to a national school board convention in St. Louis in 1947 as, as he recalls, he noticed a sign on one of the doors.

The sign made reference to federal funds for local schools. Out of curiosity, Morris stepped in and met a Mr. Oscar Row and that friendship resulted in Morris spending many days in Washington D. C. securing funds for Romulus students.

When Morris first began his school board career, the district was divided into several districts and he became instrumental in combining these districts into one and forming what is today the Romulus Community School District.

In 1957, he became a member of the Wayne County Intermediate School District. He is a past president of the group and remains on the Board of Directors. He is also a member of the Michigan State Teachers Tenure Commission (1961-67), appointed to that commission by the then Gov. Swainson and later reappointed by Gov. Romney.

For the past six years he had been a member of the Federal Relations Network of the National School Boards Association in Washington D. C. and is presently the president of the Michigan

Teamsters ratify pact with city

Although members of Teamsters Local 214 ratified an agreement that would provide its members a 30 cents across-the-board pay increase and a $300 bonus, the city and the union's bargaining teams will probably meet at the negotiating table in the next two months.

Teamster members unanimously approved the pact offered by the city on Friday, Feb. 19, and the 60 or so members of the union were expected to receive the raises retroactive to July 1, 1981.

However, the newly-signed agreement will expire in June of 1982. The old pact expired in July of 1981.

City Council has not officially accepted the new pact, however they were expected to approve it upon recommendation of Mayor William Oakley at last night's council meeting.

"It is my understanding that the council has preratified the contract," said James Markley, business agent for Teamsters Local 214. "Our members ratified the contract at our last general meeting."

Markley said he personally was not pleased with the new pact.

"But it is, in my opinion, the best financial package we will get from the city," Markley added, "because of the financial situation the city is in. According to a factfinder's report, we're about $1 per hour behind what compatible salaries for similar jobs are in surrounding area communities."

"So, I'm not especially pleased with what our members got. I feel they deserved something better," Markley concluded.

The two-year deadlock in negotiations between the city and the union had broken down several times and forced a state mediator and factfinder to step in. The factfinder's report offered 25 cents across the board raises in the first year of the contract and another 25 cents in the second year.

The Teamsters represent city clerical and Department of Public Works employees.

Head-on collision claims man's life

A 27-year-old Westland man became Romulus' fourth auto fatality victim of the year.

Police said that William Allen Norrow, 27, was traveling northbound on Wayne Rd. near Wayne-Corse Friday about 3:30 p.m. when he crossed the median and struck a southbound truck head-on.

Norrow was dead on arrival at Wayne County General Hospital.

Police said that the victim's car left the northbound lane and crossed the median, crashing into the truck. The truck driver was not injured.

The driver of the second vehicle told police that he saw the car heading for him but not in time to avert the fatal accident.

Police said that their investigation continues. Norrow was the second person to lose his life in an auto-related accident in the city in February and the fourth person to die this year.

A 39-year-old New Boston man is in good spirits and recovering following the amputation of his lower left leg as the result of a freakish accident in Westland Feb. 17.

John Steel Jr. was riding on the back end of a Painter-Rutherford refuse collection truck in that Western Wayne County community, collecting rubbish along Venoy Road near Cherry Hill Road, when the four-vehicle accident occurred.

According to police reports on the incident, a car traveling northbound on Venoy and driven by Arthur Lebring, 33, of Westland, swerved around the truck which was straddling the road and road shoulder, striking a car traveling southbound on the thoroughfare.

The Lebring car then swerved back into the northbound lane, striking the left rear end of the truck and crushing Steele's left leg below the knee. The car then swerved back into the southbound lane, striking a second car.

The accident occurred at about 6 a.m. on Feb. 17, and according to

They're MADD

Local groups want stiff penalties for drunk driving

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

"My daughter was engaged to this fine young man," said Bill Burton in a calm and even voice. "And we were looking forward to the wedding."

"And I remember we were vacationing and I got a call that my daughter was involved in a serious accident. It was one of those calls that all parents fear and say to themselves, 'No, God, please.'"

"Well, my daughter made it — she survived. That fine boy didn't. He was DOA (dead on arrival). Do you know what they did to the guy in the other car who was drunk and there was reportedly drugs in his vehicle? Well, they were going to let him off with a slap on his wrists."

"Then we got involved," Burton continued. "We got MADD, and that's M.A.D.D. and he's paying the price."

More people like Burton are turning to M.A.D.D., and acronym for Mothers against Drunk Drivers. They want drunk drivers to receive stiff penalties and they want them off the roads and in the jails.

MADD was launched in May of 1980 when the 13-year-old daughter of a California couple was struck down and killed by a hit-and-run driver. The victim, Cari Lightner, of Fair Oaks, was walking in a bicycle lane near her home with her friend. The driver who killed Cari had been out of jail on bail for only two days for another hit-and-run drunk driving crash. He also had three prior drunk driving arrests.

On Nov. 25, 1980, Clarence W. Busch, 47, the man who killed Cari was sentenced to two years in prison. However, he never went to prison. Instead he went to a work camp and then a halfway house, with an automatic one-third time off for good behavior. He was released Sept. 7, 1981. Busch was notified from the D.M.V. that he will be eligible to receive his drivers license upon release once he shows proof of liability.

Busch didn't receive the maximum sentence upon release because his "alcoholism" was considered to be a mitigating factor, outweighed by the fact he killed a little girl.

"My daughter's death was not an accident," Mrs. Sandy Lightner argued. "It was a crime. It was a crime that is neglected by the system. That is why M.A.D.D. was formed."

Mrs. Lightner, who was recently in the Metropolitan Detroit area to drum up national support for her cause, said that the objectives of M.A.D.D. are to:

- Force effective reform of the drunk driving problem;
- Be the voice of the victim;
- Increase public awareness to the seriousness of the driving under the influence;
- Teach communities how they can become involved in the fight against drunk drivers;

- Establish chapters nationwide;
- Establish court monitoring programs in each community.

"People don't realize that you have a right to sit down with the prosecutor, before the defendant is charged," Burton stressed. "You do have some say about it. We can't let these people continue to be put on probation and come out and kill again."

In Romulus, Police Chief Donald Flood admits that driving under the influence of an alcoholic beverage is a problem in the city.

"We made a lot of drunk driving arrests," Chief Flood said, "and it (making the arrests) is considered a high priority in our department. We just keep going after them. And the answer is law enforcement."

Flood doesn't think, however, the local court is lenient toward those who are arrested and convicted of drunk driving.

"I feel that the 34th District Court (in Romulus) looks at this as a very serious offense," Flood said.

Easter Bible series

The Belleville Ministerial Association is hosting an Easter Bible Study series starting tomorrow, March 4 until April 1. Rev. Bob McCreight, of the Belleville United Methodist Church, will launch the series.

Rev. McCreight has selected for the opening topic, "Jesus the Healer."

The series, which will run on consecutive Thursdays, will carry the over-all theme of "Portraits of Jesus." The personal qualities of Jesus will be examined in depth in hopes that a deeper appreciation for the work and person of our Saviour may be obtained, an organizer of the series explained.

The series will begin at 10 a.m. until 11:30 for the morning sessions and will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. for the evening sessions. Child care will be provided for the morning sessions only.

Rev. Brian Fujii, of the Belleville United Presbyterian Church, will discuss "Jesus, the Priest" on March 11, while Fr. James DeWitt's theme will be "Jesus the Servant" scheduled for March 18.

On March 25, The Very Rev. Bob Schiesler of St. Anthony's Church, will elaborate on the theme of Jesus the Prayer and concluding the series will be Rev. Margery Schleicher, of the Trinity Episcopal

A Lenten Prayer

(Going over my poems to put in my grandson's scrapbook, I found this prayer I wrote in 1966. I thought it would be appropriate at this time to share with your readers. I am in my sunset days of 84 years old... thank you.)

A Lenten Prayer

Dear forgiving Lord:
We are again in the midst of a Lenten Season, a season when fasting is on the minds and hearts of all true Christians. Let us remember then, not only refrain from food for the physical body but also to eliminate unkind thoughts, words and deeds. Instead, let the spirit of love prevail in our hearts this season.
Dear Lord, you could have summoned 10,000 angels to prevent your Crucifixion, but you did not. You chose to die on the Cross for the sins of all people. May we, from Belleville and the area, in this year of our Lord, 1982 feel the impact of that memorable day nearly 2000 years ago as strongly as the few who gathered at the foot of the Cross then. May we here rededicate our lives to Thee, our risen Lord, to our Church, to our Community, and to thy cause everywhere. In the name of the Crucified Lord we pray. Amen.

Sincerely
ADA N. SAGER

Tax savings on new cars

Michiganians who purchased new cars last year may be able to claim $1,380 in 1981 federal income tax deductions, more than double the total just four years ago, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

The $1,380 deduction is for a person who bought a new car for $9,000 at the beginning of last year and financed $7,000 of the purchase price for 48 months at a 16 percent annual interest rate.

"The tax savings includes a $360 deduction for Michigan's 4 percent sales tax and a $1,020 deduction for the first year's interest," stated Stan O'Connor, Auto Club's Tax manager.

The family automobile provided an approximate $542 deduction on federal income tax forms in 1977 when sticker prices and interest rates were significantly lower.

Sales tax and loan interest are among the deductions for taxpayers who use their cars for business or pleasure and itemize on their returns.

Taxpayers who itemize, or use the "long form," may deduct 9 cents per mile for medical or charitable travel and certain moving expenses. Casualty or theft losses not covered by insurance are allowable, though the first $100 must be subtracted.

Taxpayers who operate a vehicle for business also may deduct actual expenses for:

- Insurance premiums, license and title fees and Auto Club dues.
- Gas, oil, lubrication, washing, parking tolls and repair costs.
- Depreciation, using the Accelerated Cost Recovery System (ACRS) to compute the depreciation portion for autos placed in service during 1981.
- Monthly car lease payments, including additional operating costs. (Rental costs are in lieu of depreciation.)

Instead of itemizing actual expenses, taxpayers may use the standard mileage allowance of 20 cents per mile for the first 15,000 miles driven and 11 cents per mile thereafter, plus parking fees and tolls.

Auto Club reminds taxpayers that regardless of which method is chosen, recordkeeping is essential.

Sentry Homeowners Insurance covers more than your house.

- Other owned buildings on your premises.
- Household goods • Extra living expenses
- Medical expenses • Personal liability protection for non-auto occurrences. (Coverage subject to policy limitations.)

SUGAR - TOOTH'S WORST ENEMY

Sugar is the major cause of tooth decay. Despite this, the average person consumes about 126 pounds of sugar a year. (That's enough to make about 10,000 chocolate chip cookies!) No wonder the average person has 10 decayed teeth before his or her 15th birthday.

How does sugar perform its dreadful deed? When you eat sugary snacks, the sugar reacts with bacteria in your mouth that form colonies on the teeth. These sticky colonies of bacteria (called plaque) convert sugar to acids and tooth decay results. Simple, sugar is the fuel for tooth decay.

working for at least 20 minutes afterwards (so three sugar snacks or drinks a day create an hour's worth of acid attack). The longer a sugary food lasts in your mouth, the greater the risk of tooth decay. Sticky and chewy forms of snacks are more harmful because they tend to cling to your teeth longer.

The best decay prevention is to reduce your consumption of sugar combined with daily brushing and flossing to keep plaque from organizing.

Association of School Boards headquartered in Lansing. That association represents more than 600 school districts. He is also a member of Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments.

"One wonders," quipped Baum, "when Carl and his lovely wife, Beulah, had ever had any time to raise a family." But the Morris did — and they have four sons.

Few realize that Morris was instrumental in bringing Kelsey Hayes Company, a multi-million dollar auto parts corporation to the city. According to a newspaper account, that story goes as follows:

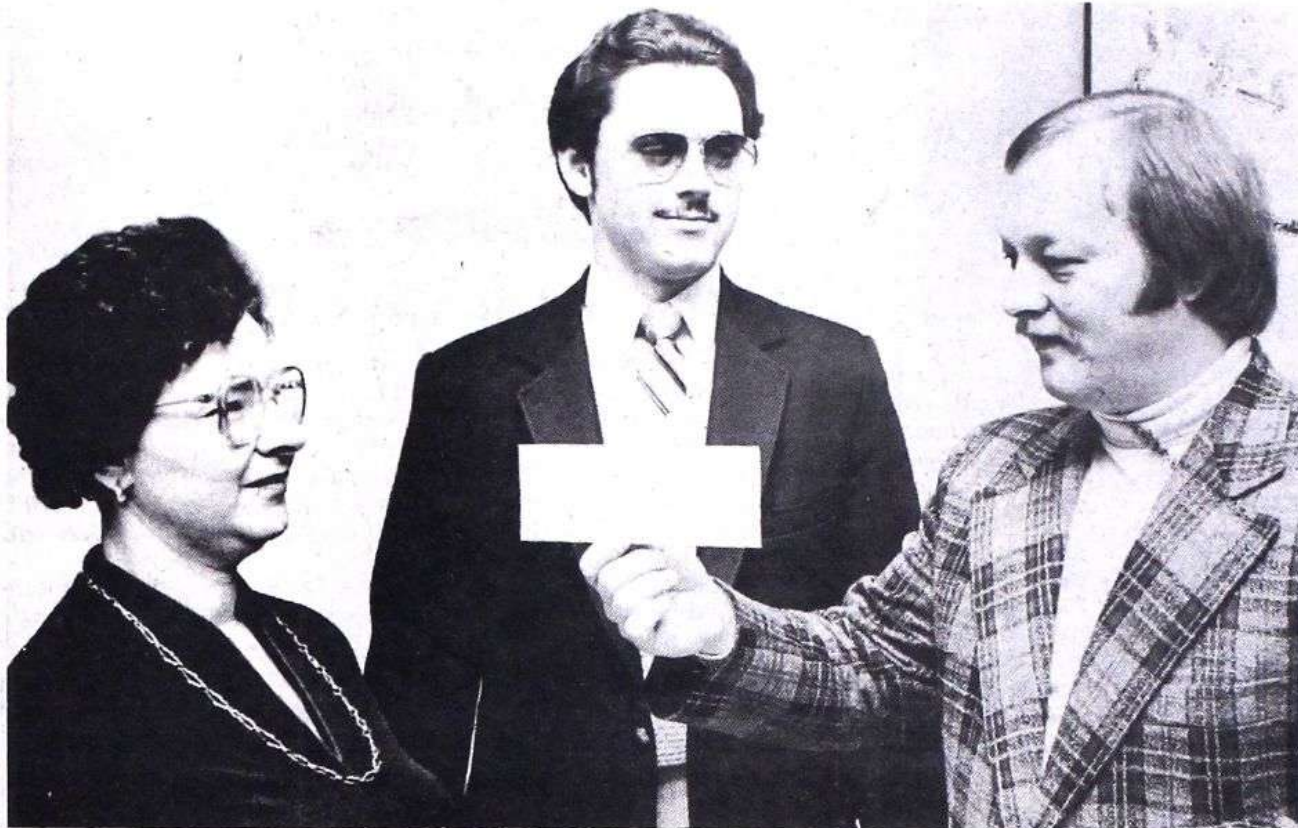

The U. S. Navy operated a jet plant in the township during the 1930s and 1940s and closed down operations during the early 1950s. The federal government appeared satisfied to let the plant and property sit idle, but in 1959, "Washington acknowledged that Carl W. Morris as one of four citizens from Romulus responsible for the sale of the Navy jet plant to the Kelsey Hayes Corporation."

One of the founders and a charter member of the Romulus Kiwanis Club, he has served as president of the club (1966) and posted a perfect attendance record for 20 years until he took senior status. Carl is chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Romulus Community United Methodist Church and he also served on such local boards as the Planning Commission, Board of Appeals, 4-H Fair, the PCHA (Peoples Community Hospital Authority, and others.

Most of these organizations were represented at the awards' banquet Saturday night and presented Morris with certificates of appreciation while city, county, state and congressional resolutions were also read in his honor.

"I love Romulus," Morris later said. "I love its people and I will continue to work as long as God wants me to help better the lives of all of our citizens."

They're all winners

When the Romulus Jaycees recently held their Millionaire's Party, no one walked away a loser. And one of the big winners of the evening was Eva Compos, who receives a check from Jaycees' president Raymond Cantrell (at right) while Jaycees treasurer Bob Sims looks on. Mrs. Compos was the winner of the 50/50 drawing. The party helped raise more than $2,000 for an electronic scoreboard to be placed in the Elmer Johnson Park. "We didn't accomplish our goal," Cantrell later said, "because we wanted to raise enough money for two scoreboards. We will, however, plan other projects in the near future to raise the necessary money for the second scoreboard."

According to hospital personnel, Steele is recovering from his injuries and is "in good spirits."

Lebring sustained minor injuries in the accident and has been issued a traffic violation for driving without due care and caution.

Mahalak named to landfill panel

State Rep. Edward E. Mahalak (D-Romulus) has been appointed to serve on a special committee to study the implementation of Solid Waste Management Act of 1978, and the Hazardous Waste Management Act of 1979.

Romulus, Van Buren, and Sumpster have recently been faced with court suits involving solid waste and hazardous waste.

The special committee will review the extent to which the solid waste management acts are fulfilling their intended objectives. They will also make recommendations regarding the need to amend these statutes or to make other changes enabling the Department of Natural Resources to improve the effectiveness of these laws.

"Some years ago it was brought to the attention of the Legislature that a critical shortage of disposal and treatment facilities existed for refuse materials and hazardous wastes," Mahalak said.

Of the 83 Michigan counties, the DNR found that 64 face critical situations. Twenty-three of the 64 counties had no licensed landfills. Thirteen had landfills that would not meet statutory requirements. Also, 28 landfills would be filled to capacity within two years.

Mahalak said that in 1979, 449 sites were "known" or "suspected" to be contaminated. Over a two year period, the list of "known" sites has increased from 268 to 402. "Suspected" sites have grown from 381 to 450.

"At the present time I see one of the main problems existing to be related to responsibility," Mahalak said.

"Many local units of government have raised questions in regards to their responsibilities and in particular, their capability to address their financial responsibilities under the Solid Waste Management Act of 1978."

"Hopefully this committee will be able to explore concerns regarding the local governments' ability to develop a twenty-year solid waste management plan, and also the response of the private sector to the need for disposal facilities," he said.

Tornado season approaching

The Wayne County Office of Emergency Preparedness begins preparations next week for this year's tornado season with a meeting on March 8 for all HAM radio operators and members of RACES, the Radio Amateur Communications Emergency Service.

THE HAMS and RACES, all volunteers who form a major part of the county alert and warning system for tornadoes, will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Building "A" at the Wayne County Complex in Westland at Michigan Ave. and Merriman Rd.

According to Mitchell B. Kozak, Director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, the group will rehearse for a tornado communications test on March 18 between 1:00 p.m. and 2:00 p.m. as part of Michigan Tornado Safety Week designated for March 14-20 by Governor William G. Milliken.

Kozak is soliciting new members for RACES and wants all interested HAMS to attend.

"We need new members to supplement our established cadre, and we want them regardless of whether or not they have had past experience with emergency circumstances. It's an opportunity for them to apply their skills toward a valuable public service," Kozak emphasized.

"Some of our greatest heroes are amateurs, and nothing is more valuable than information in an emergency," he stated.

Kozak said the seasonal peak of tornado activity in Michigan extends from April through July and that an average of 17 tornadoes occur in the state each year. Since 1950, 522 tornadoes have occurred in the state, killing 227 persons, he said.

"In recent past years we've had some severe damage from tornadoes in southeast Michigan, and we can never feel exempt from the possibility in Wayne County," Kozak said. "We need as much preparation as possible."

Congressional tribute

On hand Saturday night to honor Carl W. Morris (at left), the recipient of Romulus' "Business Person of the Year" Award was Congressman William Ford (D-15) who presented the local businessman-educator with a plaque and resolution paying tribute to Morris' many years of service to the community, state and nation.

Last call for ANP tour to Washington

Saturday is the final day you may sign up for the Associated Newspapers' inaugural tour to Washington D.C.

"We have received a surprising large number of calls about the tour," said Gene Wertz, tour organizer, "and, in order to make accommodations for all of those who wish to visit the capital, we're forced to cut off registration no later than Saturday."

When in Washington, you will be able to go through the Capitol Building on a guided tour and also visit the White House. Obviously, we can't assure you that the President will be there.

However, tour guide, Gene Wertz, says that you will be able to visit Arlington National Cemetery where Mr. Wertz will lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldiers in honor of the men of Wayne County who lost their lives defending our country.

You will also be able to visit and see the Kennedy grave sites, the Iwo Jima Statue, the Lincoln Memorial, Jefferson Memorial, visit the Church of the Immaculate Conception and the Washington Cathedral. You will have a drive to Mt. Vernon where your admission to home and ground is covered in cost of the tour.

And there will be more interesting historic sites and visits to the famous Smithsonian Institution.

The tour will be organized during the last week of March, the weekend of March 26, 27th and 28th and there is a $343 (double occupancy) and a $380 (single occupancy) charge. That price tag will include all of the following:

Two nights at Westpark Hotel, Arlington Virginia — the hotel has a heated indoor swimming pool, game room, gift shoppe; and is located near Tyson's Corner Center, fourth largest shopping mall in the country.

Also included is the airline fare via Northwest Airlines, baggage handling, tips, three days of sightseeing, all meals each day with the exception of lunch on Sunday.

If you're interested in making this historic trip, contact Gene Wertz at The Associated Newspapers during regular business hours at 729-4000.

Complain to Tax Board of Review

Do you feel your property has been overassessed?

Do you feel your property has been overassessed, therefore creating a definite tax burden?

If so, now is the time to bring that problem to the attention of the city's three-member Tax Board of Review.

The board meets yearly to consider citizen requests for tax relief, based on a variety of situations ranging from over assessment to severe structural damage and reduced market value.

The board will meet several times during the month of March to listen to citizen requests and study their documentation to determine who actually is in line for assessment rollbacks.

Meeting dates and times vary in city and townships in the area but residents can request an appointment by telephoning their respective township or city officials.

There are six criteria residents can use in determining if they are in line for a reduction in their tax assessment:

(1) Your house was purchased recently through a realtor on the open market (not a forced sale or one involving relatives) and cost significantly less than the assessed market value, which is two times the

State Equalized Valuation (SEV).

(2) A house in your neighborhood, similar in size, style and age, recently sold on the open market for significantly less than your assessed valuation.

(3) You can present documents from a certified appraiser stating that a recent appraisal valued your house lower than the city appraisal.

(4) Your house is currently on the market with a realtor at a price lower than the city assessment, or has consistently received written offers below the city assessment.

(5) The city assessment, according to appraisal record card, credits you with items not in your house (like an extra fireplace or bath, ceramic tile in bath, brick facing, finished basement, air conditioning).

(6) Your house has suffered severe structural damage (settlement causing severe cracking, water damage so extensive as to undermine the foundation, fire damage) so that you can request an inspection for reduction in relation to the damage and reduced market value.

According to the Assessor's Office, you should not expect a reduction in assessment if:

(1) You are assessed today at $10,000 more than you paid for the house many years ago. Inflation has hit the housing market, and the higher assessment reflects the fact that you can sell the house today for more than you paid for it.

(2) Your house is sorely in need of paint; the carpet is threadbare; there's water in the basement; or two storm windows are broken. You are expected to maintain your house in a reasonable condition and are not assessed lower because you don't.

(3) Your property taxes are up, but your income is fixed. The state does provide tax relief through Public Act 20 of 1973, which normally is claimed through the state income tax form.

(4) Neighboring renters have too many cars in the drive, too many people living in the house, dogs loose, and noisy parties, which lower your property value.

(5) Your neighbor's house, of the same size, style and age as yours, is completely carpeted and elaborately landscaped. Yours, however, has nothing like that, and both homes are assessed the same. Landscaping and carpeting are not considered permanent features of the property, and are not specifically assessed by the assessor.

Residents who feel they should receive a reduction in their assessment must fill out an application to appear before the review. They also must be prepared to provide adequate documentation of their claims when they meet with the three-member board.

Detective Story

She managed to find 14 relatives

By SUE BACHAND
ANP Staff Writer

Nancy Hamel has found her family.

After 27 years of curiosity, loneliness and pain, Nancy Hamel has found the people who love her — and the emptiness that dominated her life is filled with the affection of more than 150 relatives eager to show her and each other the meaning of real family affection.

She fought red tape, bureaucracy, time and distance to find the 15 brothers and sisters she had heard existed somewhere — and the only one unsurprised at her accomplishment is Nancy, herself.

As an infant, Mrs. Hamel was placed in Detroit Baptist Children's Home. She was adopted by a local family when she was 4-years old and told that she was from a large family of children all placed for adoption upon the death of their father. She also knew that a set of triplet sisters existed — but that was the only information she had.

"My own daughter turned 3, and I just looked at her and was filled with so much love. I thought, 'How could anybody give up a child like that? My God, she's so beautiful.'"

"I just couldn't believe anybody could willingly give up their own baby when I loved mine so much," Mrs. Hamel recalled.

That emotional reaction prompted an equal action and Mrs. Hamel determined that she would find the family she'd always wanted.

"I always wanted my own family — I just knew, somehow, that I'd find them. It always bothered me, because I knew I was from a large family and I was so curious.

"I had two adopted brothers but knowing that I came from so many, I really just wanted to find them. I wasn't close to my adopted brothers and somehow, I just always felt empty, not close to them at all," she explained.

Mrs. Hamel, a resident of North Carolina, sent for official forms for information from Wayne County and instituted her search. She began in March of 1981, and finally, after continuous long-distance phone calls, she began to get some information during August. She discovered that 10 children had been placed with the agency at the same time, their ages, the reason for the adoption, the education and religion of her parents and the ages now of her brothers and sisters.

She tried incessantly to obtain more information, especially the time and cause of her natural father's death — concluding that

Family Day Care conference set for March 12

"Keeping the Boat Afloat: Quality Programs in Troubled Times" is the theme of the sixth annual statewide Family Day Care Conference which will be staged from March 12 to March 13 at the Kellogg Center at Michigan State University in East Lansing. The conference is being held in conjunction with the Michigan Association for The Education of Young Children.

The conference merger is reflective of the new trends evolving in the field of Family Day Care. Family day care has become an educational alternative for parents seeking options in child care. Family day care providers have begun to focus on specialized programs to meet the specialized need within their communities.

Dramatic Play in Childhood: Rehearsal for Life, TV: How to Use It With Children, Fast and Inexpensive Crafts for Kids, What to Do When You Aren't Getting Through: Assisting Parents With Alternative Methods of Interacting With Children, Personal and Professional Growth Through Family Day Care, Helping Children Cope With Death are but a few of the many workshops being conducted by early childhood educators, workers, and family day care providers. Workshop selections range from the basic needs of the newly registered to the needs of the seasoned providers.

Parents seeking quality child care options are no longer under the handicap of having to settle for what doesn't quite measure up to their expectation, family day care providers have risen to the challenge. What was once referred to as "good old fashioned babysitting", has evolved into a valuable community service as well as a profitable contribution in helping to ease our slumping economy.

The IRS has taken a close and serious look at family day care as a business venture. The new tax laws, business, and legal aspects are included in the workshop selections.

The March 12-13 conference will be held at The Kellogg Center for Continuing Education, Michigan State University in East Lansing.

The conference is open to the public.

For more information contact: Child Care Co-ordinating Service at 662-1127 or Carol Barton of Day Care Homes Association of Washtenaw County at 485-8851.

Glaab attends sales conference

Peter J. Glaab, Jr. of Individual Financial Planning, Inc. has just returned from Hawaii where he attended a top-level sales conference sponsored by the Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Company of America, of Farmington Hills, Michigan.

Richard H. Headlee, president of Alexander Hamilton said Glaab, a New Boston resident, was selected from 4400 Hamilton sales representatives to attend the sessions "because of his leadership in our industry, demonstrated by his personal production."

Alexander Hamilton is the life insurance subsidiary of Household Finance Corporation. Licensed in 49 states and the District of Columbia, Hamilton has over 2 million clients and over $11 billion of life insurance in force.

The conferees probed the development and planning of marketing strategies and discussed potential new insurance concepts in a series of meetings.

Glaab has represented Alexander Hamilton for 14 years and this is his 14th Sales Conference.

Born and raised in Romulus, Glaab is a graduate of St. Mary's High School in Wayne. He now resides in New Boston, Michigan where he has been a resident for 25 years. Active in the community he is a member of St. Stephens Catholic Church; a local improvement group; and the Apple Festival Committee.

Doctor on Call

Those vitamins- myth or reality

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Ernest Sorini is chief of Emergency Room Services at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne. He served his internship and residency at the University of Utah Medical Center and has been in emergency medicine for five years. If you have health questions for Dr. Sorini, contact him care of Associated Newspapers Inc., P.O. Box 578, Wayne, Michigan 48184.

Vitamins: Myth or reality. I have always wanted to start out an article with a sentence that contained both a colon and the phrase "myth or reality". Now that I have accomplished this my aspirations for 1982 have nearly been completed.

A myth is generally regarded as a body of knowledge or ideas which is held by a certain group or groups of people, but which is not supported by hard, scientific evidence.

In this regard, the idea that vitamins are necessary adjuncts to the normal, everyday diet could be considered to be one of the greatest myths which has ever been perpetrated on the American public by Madison Avenue.

As a matter of fact, the "vitamin" myth is only one of several myths that we as Americans hold dear to our hearts.

The myth regarding the superiority of one race over another in terms of either intellectual powers or physical endurance and prowess; the myth that certain nationalities enjoy privileged position with regard to other nationalities; and the myth that chicken soup is a panacea for virtually every illness known to man are just a few more myths that we not uncommonly hold without recognizing that there is no scientific basis for holding these beliefs.

The myth that vitamins are useful adjuncts to an already adequate diet stems from the fact that vitamins have been shown to enter into certain chemical reactions which render the foodstuffs which we ingest daily to be incorporated into body tissue properly.

The assumption that the "vitamin" myth makes, however, is that we do not take in adequate amounts of vitamins in our everyday diet to accomplish this end. This is absolutely not the case. A diet containing standard amounts of carbohydrate, fat, and protein contains all of the essential fat soluble and water soluble vitamins needed to convert this food to body machinery.

The addition of more vitamins to an already adequate diet is nothing more than gilding the lily.

In fact, in this situation the vitamin is analogous to a wedding or engagement ring — that is, it is symbolic only, and the real "business end" of the relationship lies in an understanding between the participants. In the case of the added vitamin this only results in the body's elimination of all excess vitamins.

In addition, there are vitamins, namely vitamins A and D, which are known to be quite toxic in amounts which exceed the recommended minimum daily adult requirement. Ingestion of as little as one pound of polar bear liver, known to be high in vitamin A, has resulted in death. (I threw that in just to educate that segment of my readers that constantly write to me about the best place to buy large amounts of polar bear liver.)

The bottom line is this: if you are attempting to supplement an inadequate diet by the use of vitamins, you are wasting your money because the vitamins in this case are acting similar to a minister who is performing a wedding when both participants to the wedding are absent.

If, on the other hand, you are supplementing an already adequate diet with the use of vitamins, you perform an action which is analogous to the minister performing a wedding ceremony on two people who are already married.

Hope I have made myself perfectly clear. Eat hearty.

MISS JOYNER

The bride-elect, a graduate of Randolph-Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg, Va., earned her degree in sociology in 1976 after spending her junior year at the University of Reading in England. She is currently employed by Greensboro Travel Agency in the Group Travel Division and has been a leader with Young Life and Volunteers of the Court. She is a member of the Junior League of Greensboro.

The prospective bridegroom received a bachelor of science degree from Taylor University in Upland, Ind. in 1976 and a masters degree in history from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro in 1980. He currently is coaching gymnastics in Santa Ana, Calif. with Campus Crusade for Christ.

The young couple plan a June 5 altar date at the Westover Presbyterian Church of Greensboro.

Aerobics on calendar for Home Arts meeting

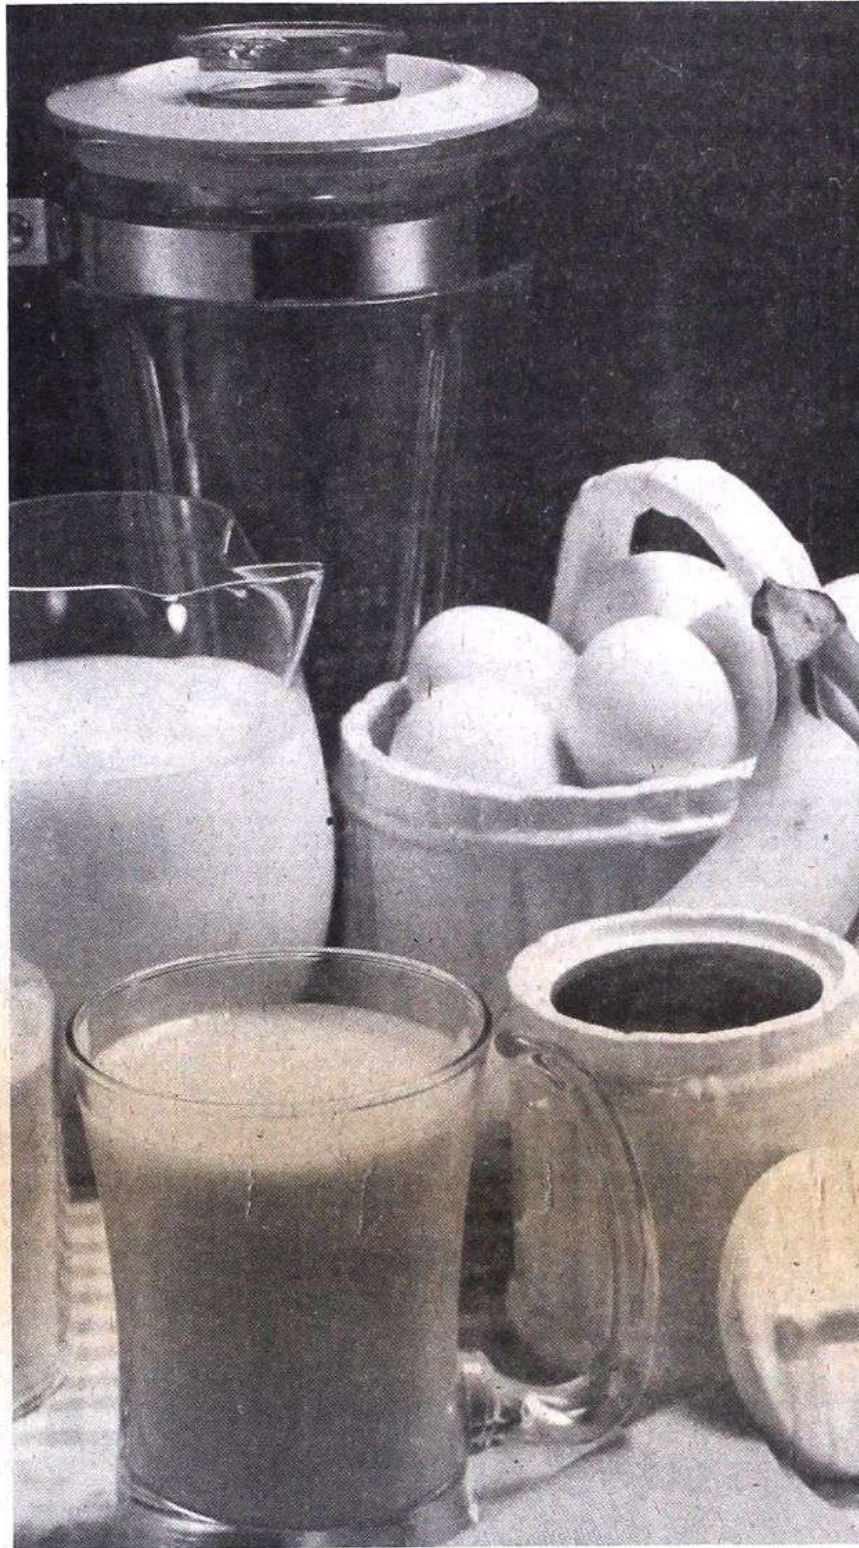

The Feb. 8 meeting of the Home Arts Club was held at the Belle Plaza Hall with 12 members present. Leotards, tights and loose-fitting clothing were the evening attire as the group joined Nancy Shephard and her aerobic dance class and stretched their muscles in time to lively music.

The purpose of each exercise was explained during the hour-long session which was followed by a short business meeting conducted by Eula Haft, president.

Hostesses for the second meeting of the year were Mary Kosin and Mary Nachtweih who served United Airlines Macadamia Nut Cake, "Dump Cake" and homemade pink mints in a Valentine-theme setting. Needless to say, all calories lost in the work-out were soon regained at refreshments time.

The March meeting will have members participating in a make-up session. Those interested in joining the club are invited to attend. Call secretary Muriel Wolfe at 697-8514 for meeting time and location.

potpourri

By Lee Smith
Suburban Living Editor

The presentation of "Ivanhoe," an adaptation of Sir Walter Scott's classic tale on TV last week, brought to mind high school English class and — required reading. Oh, how I hated r.r. (ME! The book-worm!) and despite the fact I'm positive Miss Brown included it on our "musts," I found I couldn't remember a single think about that book. Or was it that the television version was so very different?

What I DID recall, however, was Miss Brown... and Miss Turner... and Miss Kiddoo... and Miss Roscoe... those stolid old mentors who spent their final days in education with our crop of high schoolers and found it necessary to seek retirement shortly after. And I am not being facetious when I use the term "old" — they WERE "up there" and had been around to teach many of our parents before us, for heaven's sake!

I remember how we girls'd chuckle about Miss B's predictable wardrobe — the word "conservative" not being relative to us other than in government class. We used to joke that we could tell what day it was by the color of her dress — basic brown, wine, dark green, grey, navy; all long-sleeved and high-necked and way, way too long for the era. Then when the "new look" debuted and hemlines dropped to ankle-length, hers were too short.

And, of course, like her peers, there was her no-frills hairdo, her sturdy, practical "pocketbook" and those gawdawful "sensible" oxfords. Even Miss T., who had a more interesting supply of clothes (mostly suits) opted for the same look in footwear.

Therefore, it was with the greatest excitement that the new teacher in our sophomore year was not only YOUNG but wore HIGH HEELS, sharp dresses and even shirts and sweater! Like US! (Sharp, I might add, was equivalent to today's "cool.") But alas, she was not to brighten our transitive and intransitive verbs, much to our chagrin (the boys, especially) since she was pegged for freshman English and we'd already passed through that portal.

What we failed to appreciate, I realize now, was that attire was not a requisite for the excellent education those dedicated people provided. Old or not (in our then youthful eyes) they were GOOD teachers and devoted to the task they'd chosen to perform.

They were mostly a stern, no-nonsense bunch and didn't even dream of being "one of the kids." They were there to prepare us for an adult work and to let us know it required not only a good basic education but discipline and respect as well.

We have little doubt, now, that if there's such a place as "school-marm's heaven," the Miss Browns, Turners, Kiddoos, Roscoes and others of their ilk should NOW be able to be "one of the bunch."

IF YOU'RE LOOKING for something "interesting" for those meatless days in Lent, here's a recipe that came to us courtesy the American Dairy Association. And with quiches being so popular these days, you'd be right in style serving this one filled with local mushrooms.

ONION-MUSHROOM QUICHE

One 9-inch unbaked pie shell
3 eggs, beaten
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup thinly sliced onion
½ cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1½ cups (6 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups light cream OR half and half.

Preheat oven to 450°F. Brush inside of pie shell with a small amount of the beaten eggs. Prick bottom and sides with a fork. Bake until light golden brown, about 5 minutes. Set aside to cool while preparing filling. Reduce oven temperature to 375°F. Sauté onion and mushrooms in butter until tender, about 5 minutes. Cool; drain. Combine sautéed vegetables, Swiss cheese, flour and salt. Spread in pie shell. Combine beaten eggs and light cream. Pour over the cheese mixture. Bake until knife inserted near center comes out clean, about 35 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes before serving for easy slicing. Serves 6.

STARTLING FACTS ABOUT AMERICANS

— Dr. Vincent De Francis, director of the Children's Division of the American Human Association, estimates that 30,000 to 40,000 children are "truly battered" by their parents in an average year. He says that another 100,000, at least, are sexually abused.

According to researchers, for every child abused by parents, six others are neglected.

In a survey by the Texas Council of Child Welfare Boards, one adult in seven reported that she or he had experienced abuse or neglect as a child. One in four had complained to authorities. Nearly two thirds said they do not consider spanking with a paddle to be physically abusive, so the incidents they had in mind were something more than that.

— Dennis Hayes, energy expert for a Washington think tank called Worldwatch Institute, calculates that the average American, in the course of his or her lifetime, produces a pile of garbage equal to 600 to 700 times his or her own weight. A 150-pounder would create about 95,500 pounds of garbage if Hayes is right.

THE PISCANS HAVE IT

Readers born under the 12th sign of the zodiac — Pisces, the fishes — who have a natal date this week are sharing their anniversaries with the following folks:

Dinah Shore, who chalked up Number 65 last Sunday, March 1, along with David Niven, 72; Ron (Happy Days) Howard, 28; Harry Belafonte, 55; and Robert Conrad, 47.

Desi Arnaz, 65; Karen Carpenter, 32; Dr. ("Cat in the Hat") Suess, 78; and Jennifer Jones, 63, were all delivered on March 2.

Jackie O's little sister, Lee Radizwill (is she still called "Princess"?) is 49 today, March 3 and Paula Prentiss is marking her 43rd tomorrow, March 4.

Andy Gibb and Rex Harrison, born 50 years apart on March 5, will turn 24 and 74 respectively.

Saturday, March 6, friends will be singing those traditional lyrics to Ed McMahon, who'll be 59, and Rob Reiner, who'll say hello to 37.

A FEW MORE IN THE DID-JA KNOW DEPARTMENT

Were you aware that every time you dine at a Red Lobster restaurant you're adding to the coffers of General Mills? Or that a take-out at the Jack-in-the-Box chain helps make Ralston Purina folks a bit richer? Or that those luscious sundaes one devours at the Friendly Ice Cream Restaurants are tabulated by the Hershey Foods people?

Did'ja know that Pillsbury makes the decisions when it involves the Burger King or Steak and Ale franchises? And that all those Italian goodies dished out at the Pizza Huts and the Mexican fare at Taco Bells are regulated by the Pepsi Cola Company? Oh, and you might as well know Pepsi also has the say concerning North American Van Lines and Wilson Sporting Goods.

And here're a few more big companies whose involvement might surprise you: Nabisco owns Aqua Velva; Greyhound controls Armour Meats; Campbell Soups sop up with Bounty Towels; Quaker Oats toys with the Fisher-Price playthings; H. J. Heinz's "57 Varieties" includes Weight Watchers; and Beatrice Foods "fare" includes Samsonite Luggage.

THE BOTTOM LINE: Heredity is what a man believes in until his son begins to behave like a delinquent.

Breakfast in a glass

With so many household members off to work — or to school — the sit-down breakfast has become a weekend luxury for many people.

In spite of this changing scene, the needs for early morning nutrition and energy remain constant, and consumers are discovering how effectively, and easily, beverages can satisfy a good part of their needs. For example, start with orange-flavored instant breakfast drink, add a few basic ingredients and whirl them together with a blender or a hand mixer, and you've got the formula for delicious, and nutritious, morning refreshment.

This Orangy Banana Shake is a good-tasting beverage that is quick-and-easy to prepare, with the help of everyday ingredients. A single serving satisfies the daily requirement of vitamin C; the banana and milk provide additional nutrients, such as vitamin A, calcium and protein.

Orange-Honey Nog is another variation of the do-it-yourself shake, a smooth, orange-and-honey-flavored eggnog complete with milk and egg to help you start your day.

Both of these beverages do wonders too, as midday energy boosters.

Orangy Banana Shake

2 tablespoons Tang orange flavor instant breakfast drink
¾ cup milk
½ small banana, cut in chunks

Combine all ingredients in blender container; blend until smooth. Makes 1 cup or 2 servings.

One serving (½ cup) of Orangy Banana Shake provides the following: Calories, 240; Carbohydrate, 41 g; Protein, 6 g; Fat, 7 g. Percentages of U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances (U.S. RDA): Protein, 15%; Vitamin A, 45%; Vitamin C, 100%; Calcium, 35%.

Orange-Honey Nog

2 tablespoons Tang orange flavor instant breakfast drink
1 cup milk
1 egg
1 tablespoon honey

Combine all ingredients in blender container; blend well. Makes about 1½ cups or 2 servings. Note: Use only clean egg with no cracks in shell.

One serving (¾ cup) of Orange-Honey Nog provides the following: Calories, 210; Carbohydrate, 27g; Protein, 7g; Fat, 7g.

Percentages of U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances (U.S. RDA): Protein, 15%; Vitamin A, 25%; Vitamin C, 90%; Calcium, 20%.

Our opinions

Foreign exchange: Send our criminals to Cuba

Few will disagree that punishments for most crimes in Europe are stricter than similar offenses in the United States. We like to think of ourselves as a civilized society; a society with compassion and understanding for the wrongdoer as well as the wronged.

We do not like to see humans wasting away in jail, preferring to believe that there is, in all of us, some innate good. That humans differ from other animals in that we have the ability to reason and one of the requirements for belonging to the human race is the ability to reason.

Unfortunately, somewhere in the grand design of life, some where down the long line of evolution, somewhere between the molecule and the flesh, there sometimes is a cell that comes out blank. Even evil.

Most sociologists won't agree - they believe that given the proper environment, kids and adults will somehow repair their past and join the rest of us.

That may be so.

But we have to wonder. We listen to groups like MADD — Mothers against Drunk drivers — and nod our head in agreement with what they have to say. Drivers who kill while under the influence of alcoholic beverages should not be allowed behind a wheel. But there they are, often to kill again.

Like the robber, rapist and murderer who can hire a lawyer with acuity, the drunk driver is put on the street as soon as he can post bond. Like the robber. The rapist. And even the murderer.

Are the courts lenient?

It seems to be that way, but most have no alternatives. After all, our jails are bulging with inmates who can riot and destroy, even within their own confines.

What is the answer then?

There are several — or maybe there are none. As someone once said, "a poor solution to a problem is like no solution at all."

Still, we can't resist offering ours:

Though we are no friend of Fidel Castro's, maybe we should follow his unique plan to rid his country of the disenchanted, the rabble rousers by deporting them to some foreign soil. Maybe we could arrange for him to take an equal number of our disenchanted, our criminals in exchange for our kindness.

A year in a Cuban jail — we will bet — will cure a lot of our criminals.

The Hillenbrand Report

Bottles, bongos and Dillon's rule

By BERNARD F. HILLENBRAND

The most overriding concern is, of course, fiscal constraint such as debt limits and taxing power. Tax reform movements have stripped local government of their ability to fund vital local programs. Most property taxes are now absorbed by increasing costs for federal and state mandates. The situation is likely to be made worse by municipal and state fights over block grants.

And yet, despite the political popularity of tax cutting, it is important to note that some local governments with fiscal home rule have proposed effective and creative funding mechanisms. Cook County, Ill., for example, now finances its public general hospital with cigarette taxes.

Robert Hawkins, former chairman of Reagan's task force on local government reform in California has said that over the past 40 years, local government, "the most basic American institution, has steadily been weakened by consolidation of power at the national level. The bottom-up notion of governance which gave form to America has been turned on its head.

"It is imperative that new leadership and institutions be created that can provide a renewed sense of the rights of citizens, communities and neighborhoods to share in their own destinies," he has written. Hawkins must have made a deep impression on President Reagan because this is the exact posture of this administration.

As if lending credence to greater local discretion, from a survey of public opinion on local government and taxes conducted by ACIR comes the report that more Americans believe local governments give them the most for their money. A third of those surveyed gave local government the most support, followed by 30 percent who selected the federal government.

State governments received 25 percent. This was only the second time in a decade that local government received such high marks.

Outlaw handguns

One year ago this month, the President of the United States was nearly killed with a "Saturday Night Special."

Thank God President Reagan survived.

But during this past year over 20,000 other Americans were shot with handguns. They were not as fortunate as the President. They died.

It's easy to blame the politicians in Congress who should be doing something to stop America's handgun violence.

But the Congress works for us.

What have we done? What have you done?

The gun lobbyists are puny compared to us. Polls show that nine in ten Americans want tougher handgun laws. But the politicians hear from the gun zealots every day. It's time they heard from us.

Our goal is to find ONE MILLION AMER-ICANS who care enough about handgun violence to stop it.

And if becoming ONE MILLION STRONG isn't enough, we'll find ten million more until our handgun laws are strengthened. And if Congress won't change the law, we'll change the Congress.

Every time a John Lennon or Ronald Reagan is shot, America is called a sick society. A handful of kooks doesn't make us a sick society. But what is sick is for the rest of us to let this handgun violence continue.

You can do something to stop America's handgun violence. Contact us. We'll show you how.

The Other Side of the Meridian

Time capsule

By TOM MOORADIAN
Managing Editor

To those who arrive here 20 years hence and take time to peruse this newspapers' morgue, here is my time capsule.

The state, unlike the nation, is wallowing in a deep depression, yet President Reagan offers billions for defense but not one cent for charity.

The world is challenging the integrity of our auto workers - there is nothing wrong with American-made cars except the price tags and the high interest rates. Bring them down and take our workers off the unemployment rolls and we will again be the Auto Capital of the World.

Writers fill their sentences with sex and violence and the motto of American TV seems to be "show more of it" — intoxicate viewers with gore in order to produce top ratings.

The meek shall not inherit the earth — they, along with everyone else — will probably be rubbed out during a nuclear war. The survivors will be the robots who will inherit the world, with no programmers.

In Westland, the mayor and the city council are at odds. And that's nothing new. It seems ever since Nankin Township gave way to progressive thinkers wanting to build a bright new city, those two protagonists (or are they "antagonists"?) have been at odds. We're afraid to say "bury and hatchet" for fear it may wind up in someone's back.

Why intelligent people become mesmerized by power when their first duty is to serve the people who elected them to office is beyond me. The exuberance of politics is swallowed up when individuals put their interests above the interests of their community.

The satisfying knowledge that a person has won an election and has moved forward to accomplish the needs of the community is, to us, "what it's all about."

Romulus, a city divided by an airport, finds an arrogant suitor in a sludge factory. New business is always welcomed by communities, but the illusion which another newspaper offered to the residents of the city is just that - an illusion. There is another word for sludge - and we will not use it here. Nor the name of the other publication.

But, if, as the publication contends, "the sludge factory will create 120 new jobs, 861 side jobs, $1,720,000 in school taxes and $430,000 in city taxes," then why doesn't Detroit (where the sludge is created) roll out the welcome mat?

And if, as we always thought, taxes are based csev (state equalized evaluation of property), and if the sludge plant has not been assessed, then where do these seemingly impressive figures come from?

Sludge.

And in Van Buren Township, the trustees, heavy-hearted and weary over recent controversy, continue to seek a "compromise candidate" to fill a vacancy created by trustee Fred Domen's resignation.

They have 45 days to do it in — and time is running out.

Time capsule — here is my suggestion to those people. Let the governor step in and set a special election; let the voices of the people be heard; their voices will reveal a lot. The cost of the election will be well worth the time and effort.

And in the midst of all the controversy and turmoil, the city of Wayne remains calm and almost bucolic in comparison. "It's great," my colleague says, "to live in Wayne."

I prefer Aruba — wherever that may be.

W-W 'K-14'

debate continues

EDITOR — While some who read Donald Rusnock's February 10 "response" to my guest editorial thought that we should begin numbering the rounds in this match, I disagree.

While I do not think that my posture of support for Wayne County Community College (WC3) is defensive or simply protecting my "turf," I do agree that all sides should be heard.

I am pleased that the Wayne-Westland Community School (WWCS) Board President has also come forth saying that an objective decision will be reached after all sides of the issue have been heard.

We, at WC3, totally support that point of view. We, too, feel that the citizens of Wayne-Westland should be heard. We are the taxpayers and the ones who will be called upon, ultimately, to support any and all higher educational institutions in our service district.

As an elected official of this region, a citizen of Westland, and a concerned taxpayer, I would urge all of us to make our voices heard. I underline the WWCS Board's request that citizens participate in the decision-making process. All of us should attend the three additional public hearings scheduled in our community. They are as follows: Tuesday, March 9 at 7 p.m., Stevenson Jr. High; Wednesday, March 10 at 7 p.m., Adams Jr. High; and Thursday, March 11 at 7 p.m., Franklin Jr. High.

Mr. Rusnock's invitation to the citizens of our community should be taken advantage of. For those who cannot attend one of these hearings, I would urge you to put your thoughts in writing to one or all of the Board members. The members of the WWCS Board are: Donald Rusnock, President; Kenneth Marshall, Vice President; Mildred Batterson, Secretary; Mary Arbour, Treasurer; Thomas R. Barrett, Trustee; David Moranty, Trustee; and Fred Warmbier, Trustee.

Their mailing address is: Wayne-Westland Community Schools, 36745 Marquette, Westland, MI 48185.

For those who have been following the development of this community college idea, we note that the timeline for the WWCS Board to make a decision may have been pushed back.

Originally, late March or early April was the target date.

The WWCS Board had its regular meetings scheduled for March 22 at 7 p.m. and April 5 and 26 at 7 p.m. Mr. Rusnock's article stated a "May" decision date. Hopefully, if the timeline has been changed, it will be shared with the community openly so that those with an interest in this issue can be heard.

Also, persons may be interested in attending the Board meeting when this issue is discussed and a decision is made, so the dates need to be clarified.

Lastly, we should note that WWCS's action will be the first step in the decision-making process. It is the State Board who will, in fact, make the final decision. Again, citizens may wish to make their opinions heard by those who are making the final determination.

The members of the State Board are: Mrs. Barbara A. Dumochelle, President, Grosse Ile; Dr. Gumecindo Salas, Vice President, East Lansing; Mrs. Barbara Roberts Mason, Secretary, Lansing; Mr. Norman O. Stockmeyer, Treasurer, Westland; Mr. David Laro, Flint; Ms. Annetta Miller, Huntington Woods; Dr. Edmund F. Vandette, Chassel/Houghton; and Mr. John Watanen, Marquette.

The Board's mailing address is: State Board of Education, P. O. Box 30008, Lansing, Michigan 48909.

After WWCS's Board decision, if it is favorable to recommending that a K-14 system be created, the State Board will have jurisdiction and will make the final decision.

Hopefully, additional hearings will be held at that time — if we come to that point.

We urge the Wayne-Westland citizens to stay apprised of the developments on this issue and to make their voices, concerns, and questions heard.

Only through an open process of discussion and weighing all the factors can a fair and equitable decision be made.

I believe that the result of that process will be supportive of WC3's position.

Time will tell. In the meantime, I continue to welcome your input to me. Written communication can be sent to me care of Wayne County Community College, Western Campus, 9555 Haggerty Road, Belleville, Michigan 48111.

'Games' class and finances

EDITOR — All of us are aware of continuing budget problems in the Plymouth-Canton School District.

The Canton Eagle article concerning the "Games" class at West Middle School leaves me all the more convinced of mismanagement as a major factor in our budget woes.

Why should we talk about raising millages, cutting class hours, increasing class sizes, etc., when we are wasting teacher salaries in offering such courses?

I consider it financially irresponsible to spend tax dollars to offer our children a class where playing games is the basic subject matter.

Good deeds during storm

EDITOR — May I please be permitted to express my deep appreciation to the Friendship Center, Home Chores, through the newspaper?

During the big snow storms, I know it must have been a tremendous burden on a lot of us to attempt to keep the sidewalks clear. However, three fine youngsters — Richard, Mark and Michael came to my rescue. They removed the snow around my mailbox and driveway.

Thank you ever so much — and God Bless them.

Nation in dire need of leaders

EDITOR — I'm glad to see that Gov. Milliken and President Reagan have finally discovered that Michigan is in a depression.

I would have been happier, however, if they had noticed it a long time ago, and taken steps to try and alleviate some of the problems we are facing.

It is amazing to me how far behind the people, most politicians are. Instead of leading, they are always following, out of fear of the electorate.

Now that they have realized the severity of the problems, I hope they will get to work on some solutions.

This is a great state with a strong and dependable work force.

It is a shame that our unemployment offices are filled to capacity, and so much positive energy is put on hold, while Michigan drifts deeper and deeper into depression.

What we need are some leaders, not followers.

More on recall in Van Buren

EDITOR — We cannot comprehend the reasoning behind the request of a member of the Van Buren Township Recall Committee to seek appointment, by the sitting Town Board, to a Town commission.

If the Town Board is "unfit to serve" as the Recall Committee has implied, is it not reasonable to "suspect" the rationale behind the desire of this individual to serve under a "so-called unfit" Town Board?

Will someone, anyone, answer this puzzling dilemma?

Who needs 'game-a-thons'?

EDITOR — I am, after all these years, going to express my displeasure at the play games-a-thons.

We now are going to have our energetic and healthy youth assume the posture of our honorable senior citizens and have a rock-a-thon in real rockin' chairs.

Why, in the name of concern for others, don't we put this same youthful energy to task with such things as work-a-thon i.e., paint-a-house, clean-a-park, rake-a-leaf, clean-a-community, mow-a-lawn, shovel-a-drive, run-an-errand or read-a-book (to the blind). Do something constructive!

Damned if I'll pay someone to do something that I wish I had time to do myself. Rockin' chairs? Really!!

Vet didn't report service injury

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are representative questions answered daily by VA counselors. Full information is available at any VA office.)

Q — When are dividends paid on participating National Service Live Insurance policies?

A — Dividends are normally paid on the anniversary date of the insurance policy. No application is necessary.

Q — I was injured while on active duty in World War II, but have never filed a claim for compensation with the Veterans Administration. Is it too late to do so now?

A — No. There is no time limit for filing a claim for compensation. Contact the nearest VA office for assistance.

Q — I am a former Prisoner of War of World War II and was confined for 28 days. Am I entitled to dental care through the VA medical system?

A — No. With few exceptions, dental care benefits are available to veterans with service-connected dental conditions only.

Q — My brother died a few days ago. When his VA pension check comes on the first of the month, can I cash it to help pay for the funeral bill?

A — No, you must return the check to the VA. If you authorize the services, you may apply for reimbursement of your expenses when you have received your final bill.

March Winds

*Life can be barren and empty like a leaf-less tree alone,
With loneliness that settles in every joint and bone.*

*Yet as sure as there's a springtime
there will be buds upon the trees,
Ridding each branch of the loneliness that came with winter's freeze.*

*As a tree sheds its leaves
so can a life shed its woes,
And take on a tranquility that will turn the eyes of foes.*

*It comes with patient teaching, mixed with love for the souls of men,
And a willing heart surrendering so The Master can come in.*

*Then as the new life blossoms
you soon will proudly see,
A beauty such as springtime and the character of a tree.*

Winter's Paradise

*The snow is falling softly
Touching branches in the trees.
Crystalizing every stem that quivers in the breeze.*

*The frosty mist is blowing white
Across the freezing ground
The cotton flakes are placed so close*

*They muffle every sound.
It seems I have been moved
To a land in some far place
Where everything the eye can see*

*Is stitched in silver lace.
I'd like to live awhile
In this new found paradise
But, know I must live as before
And hope it will suffice.*

Reflections

'Born, one suffragette...circa 1918'

There were lots of letters the other day. The mailman had slipped and slid to my mailbox and I had slipped and slid out to meet him. It was worth it. For tucked away with the bills and the advertising was a letter from my cousin in Idaho.

In that letter was enclosed a postcard birth announcement.

"I found this in Mother's things," she wrote. "And I thought it was darling."

The postcard had on its front the head and long bill of a stork, and hanging from the bill was a grinning baby holding a placard reading "Women's vote."

In huge letters across the face of the postcard were the words, "Born, One Suffragette." And the date was May 4, 1918. The baby was 8 lbs.; a blue-eyed female, named Joyce.

"They had you dubbed right, right from the beginning," my husband said.

"What does suffragette mean, Grandma?" my granddaughter asked.

"It means what has ruined the world," her grandfather said, and if I had thought he really meant it I would have hit him with something, but I knew he meant it the same way he means it when he says a driver in front of him is dumb. I ask him how he knows he is dumb and he tells me it is the way his head is sitting on his shoulders.

My husband has lots of funny little sayings, like when I turn left on a right turn only, he will say, "That's why women never flew B-24's."

"Why would that word ruin the world?" my granddaughter persisted, plainly puzzled.

"Suffragette meant to let the woman vote," I told her, but I was interrupted by her grandfather who said I shouldn't put ideas into the little kids head that might make her unattractive to the male.

Naturally this got his daughter jumping into the discussion and after it got going real good my husband jumped behind his newspaper and grinned.

"All I can say," he said to his daughter, "is that your mother thinks she is mother to the world. She is also the world's greatest public defender. PD is what I call her, and the only time she looks short is when she isn't standing on her soap box, which isn't often."

"Dad," my daughter wailed. "All I'm saying is that her parents knew something no one else knew when they picked out that birth announcement for her." And he went back behind the paper.

Sometimes I don't know how to take him. Sometimes I think he would like a different kind of wife than I am. And about the time I have firmly persuaded myself of this fact, he will come home, like he did yesterday, and say, "I have a real issue for you to take up on that soapbox."

"I don't think I should," I said to him, remembering that most of all I really do want to be his beloved wife, honored and respected.

JOYCE HAGELTHORN

"What do you mean you don't think you should?" he answered. "There isn't anyone who can carry an issue to its fullest frustration any better than you. Get going, Girl, it's important."

And he gave me a little shove, and a swat across the back end and said, "If we men aren't careful you women are going to take over the world. Then we will be lost."

And he went in and hid behind his newspaper.

Caring and sharing...when?

We were talking the other day about hoarding, about "putting by", about the Mormons, who, as part of their religion, don't rest easy until they have a year's supply of food stockpiled, and about the "survivalists", who don't rest easy until they have a year's supply of food stockpiled, along with a year's supply of ammunition to protect it with.

We got to wondering how we would react if we were the ones with the food and, because of some great catastrophe, hordes of people were suddenly without...

What if they came to our doors begging for — or demanding — a share of that food? Would we give it, knowing that if we did, we would be denying our own families a guarantee of life for a given period of time?

Or would we feel smug about our foresight and refuse without a second thought, thinking that those people had the same opportunities we did for gathering food against a time when there would be none?

Would be use as a parallel the old story of the grasshopper and the ant?

Someone in the group said, "I think it would be better not to stockpile it at all; to die with the rest of them, rather than to have to decide who gets it and who doesn't."

Someone else said: "When, and if the time came, you wouldn't have to do the deciding — they would decide for you. They would just steal it. People would turn into animals if such a thing ever happened."

Another one said: "I'm not ashamed to say that if my kids were starving and I knew where there was food, I wouldn't be above stealing it. My kids would come first, over anything else."

We sat for a while, thinking about what life would be like in the event of a cataclysmic nuclear or natural disaster. Not a one of us, it turned out, thought seriously that we would be the ones starving... we were always the ones with the food or shelter, having to decide how much or how little to give away.

"Why are we even worrying about it," someone said. "We're so close to Detroit that we'll all be dead seconds after it hits, anyway." (No more natural disaster, notice — now it got down to the nitty-gritty — nuclear holocaust.)

"But what if we could get away? What if we happened to be somewhere else when it hit. In one of those "safe zones" they put in the paper? And what if there was food, lots of food, where we were? Would any of us want to be the ones who decide who gets fed and who doesn't?"

"Yeah, and if we starved ourselves to feed our children, who would take care of them when we were gone?"

And what about the old people? Would we let them die first, and let the stronger, healthier ones live?"

"And what about when the food ran out? What if it was contaminated? What would we all do? Would we all become animals and look out only for ourselves?"

The room became silent again as we thought about ourselves — about our lives now — about how resourceful, — adaptable, courageous, we are — if we are.

It was surprising how hard it was to see oneself in a setting where life in the Land of Plenty didn't exist anymore. Where the day started and ended with a struggle to survive. Where the goals for the day were getting enough food to eat and finding shelter for the night...

Then someone said, "Have any of you ever thought that there are thousands of people, right here in this country, who have to struggle every day of their lives to find enough food and a place to sleep?

MONA GRIGG

"Have any of us ever given more than a fleeting thought to them? Have any of us ever offered food and shelter to any of them? What makes us think that, if times got worse, we would ever think of anyone but ourselves?"

The room was still again, for just a minute, until someone said, "Have you seen 'on Golden Pond'?" There was an audible sigh of relief before everyone joined in the conversation — even those who hadn't seen the movie. They were almost desperate to talk about it.

It was one thing to wax philosophic at a gathering. It was quite another to be smacked in the face with reality.

It wasn't appreciated.

Detective Story

field Public Library she discovered what she had been looking for — a set of triplet girls born Oct. 3, 1949.

In newspaper articles she found the name Colvin, which she realized must be her natural father's name, and the name of her older brother. Rechecking the obituary records, she found obituary information including the name of five aunts and one uncle.

"It was New Years Eve — and I was so excited. Everybody I worked with got on our Wats line at work and we started calling Detroit information. My boss was so helpful letting us do it — there must have been 10 of us calling — all claiming to be me.

Finally, one of her co-workers called her over and handed Mrs. Hamel the phone with the words, "I have your first cousin on the line," a moment Nancy Hamel will never forget.

It was pure fate that the cousin happened to be visiting another relative — otherwise the connection might never have been made, Mrs. Hamel said.

From her first cousin, Mrs. Hamel procured the name of an aunt who was familiar with the whole family — some of the brothers and sisters had grown up together in Detroit and others had discovered each other.

"I was totally prepared to be rejected. My cousin said she would call my aunt Sylvia and have her call me, because it would be such a shock.

"I thought no way — she won't call me. I had felt rejected all my life and I just knew it was going to happen again.

"She called me back in two minutes and told me all about my family my brothers, my sisters, all of them that she knew — I can't describe what it was like," Mrs. Hamel said.

Leaving work, Mrs. Hamel just barely arrived home in time to answer the call of her cousin Shirley Ringo — a woman who had begged the courts to allow her to adopt Nancy as an infant, and who had longed to find her for years.

Mrs. Ringo, a Westland resident, gave Mrs. Hamel phone numbers and names of family members she knew — and then the long distance lines began to heat up.

By 3:30 a.m. New Years Day, Nancy had talked to brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles, cousins and finally, her natural mother. She had found all her living siblings with the exception of the triplets — and she vowed to everyone that she would complete the family and find them. With the help of a newspaper columnist, she did.

Mrs. Hamel is now visiting the Ringos at their Westland home and all the brothers and sisters have been writing letters, sending pictures and getting acquainted.

The triplets had attempted unsuccessfully to locate the remainder of their family, but were told that the records had all been destroyed. They were overjoyed to hear from Mrs. Hamel.

"I'd have never gotten through it all, emotionally I mean, without the help of my friends Nora and Gene Kerkman from North Carolina — when I cried in frustration, they listened and when I found my family it was like they found part of theirs," Mrs. Hamel said.

"You know, I was raised with foster children and all the time

The entire family will meet for a complete family reunion in the area early in April and Mrs. Hamel can't wait.

Plight of the deaf explored

Wayne teacher eyes Academy Award

By DENNIS NIEMIEC
Feature Editor

For three years students at Wayne Memorial High School had heard Linda Chapman talk about her film project. Now they know why their teacher was so enthused by what was transpiring.

"See What I Say," a 24-minute study of life for the deaf produced by Chapman and two friends, is among five nominees for an Academy Award in the short documentary category. Filmed on a $24,000 budget, their work has captured several prestigious awards already, including a blue ribbon at the 1981 American Film Festival.

"The central idea of the film is that deaf people have a right to access and ideas," Chapman explained over a cup of coffee recently. "Being deaf is an invisible handicap so we don't tend to make things accessible to them."

"In the film we promote sign language as a way two cultures can be brought together. What many don't realize is that there are 14 million deaf people in America and sign language is the third most used language after English and Spanish."

It was at a Holly Near concert that Chapman, along with co-producers Pam LeBlanc and Fred Stevens, were "moved to tears" by Susan Freundlich's translation of the folksinger's lyrics for the deaf. Watching Freundlich, an American Sign Language interpreter, incorporate mime and dance into her interpretation inspired the three filmmakers into action.

"We were amazed to see that sign language was such a physical language, not some guy in a box in the corner of the screen," recalled Chapman. "Later all of us took sign language lessons and found out that it had its own grammar, its own syntax...not pidgin English."

That message forms the basis of the film, shot at a Holly Near concert in Boston and at four locations in the Boston home of production manager Lynne Conroy.

Concert scenes are spliced with the stories of four women who experienced the isolation of the deaf. One woman remembers that when she grew up, "sign language was forbidden. Even if I waved 'hi' I would get hit."

At the close of the film, Holly, the American Sign Language interpreter and the audience sing a ballad about women supporting one another. A shared communication between hearing and deaf cultures is emotionally portrayed throughout the work, shot with a 21-woman crew.

"Speaking and lip reading are encouraged more than sign language," Chapman pointed out.

Holly Near concert audience joins in sign language.

"What many don't realize is that there are 14 million deaf people in America and sign language is the third most used language after English and Spanish."

What's That Sound?

Grammys--my way

BEST LIVE SHOW: The Stray Cats at Ann Arbor's Second Chance. An American band that had to go to England to become stars, these guys showed a sold-out house that rock and rockabilly aren't all that different. Was it five encores or six? I can't remember.

HONORABLE MENTION: Cheap Trick, also at the Chance, proved that when they get back to basics, they're still as good as they come.

BEST NEW GROUP: Without a doubt, the Go-Go's take the honor here. This five-piece all woman band proved that not all L.A. rock is dull and boring. On the strength of the singles "Our Lips Are Sealed" and "We Got The Beat" the album, "Beauty And The Beat," is still climbing the charts and is currently the No. 3 record in America.

BEST JUDGMENT AWARD: To Gary Numan, who decided to quit touring. Now, if we can just keep him out of the recording studio too...

MOST DURABLE: The Clash, for playing 16 consecutive nights at Bond's on Broadway after the club had oversold the original three shows. Joe Strummer said "We did it for the kids."

BEST HOPE FOR THE FUTURE OF ROCK 'N' ROLL: The Knack's new album failing to make Billboard's top 200.

MOST PATHETIC: Ozzy Osbourne, for everything.

HONORABLE MENTION: The kids in Detroit who were disappointed that Ozzy didn't blow-up a goat onstage, as rumor had it.

QUOTE OF THE YEAR: Prince, who said "I used to read my Mother's porno books when I was nine, and I guess they interested me more than the Hardy Boys."

BEST PERFORMANCE BY OLD ROCKERS HANGING IN THERE: The Stones' "Tattoo You"; The Kinks' "Give The People What They Want"; and Iggy Pop's "Party."

M.I.A.: Venue - Center Stage, who seem to have dropped major acts from their roster in favor of local "oldies" bands. Local Bands - Johnny Thunders (sometimes even when he's there), The Mutants, Hot Lips, The Shake, HVN 17.

BEST SINGLES: Billy Idol's fantastic "Dancing With Myself," Devo's "Through Being Cool," Squeeze's "Tempted" and yes, Rick Springfield's "Jessie's Girl."

BEST ALBUMS: G.E. Smith's debut LP, Joe Jackson's "Jumpin' Jive," Elvis' "Trust," Sparks' triumph comeback album "Whomp That Sucker," and the Raybeats' "Guitar Beat," an album of surf-instrumentals that proves old styles never die, they just get better.

MOST OVER-RATED ALBUM: The Police's "Ghost In The Machine." I'm not sure, but I think there may be one or two melodious moments on the entire LP.

PICKS TO HIT IN '82: Billy Idol, XTC, The Boomtown Rats, Angel City, Mick Ronson's Yaquis, Nick Lowe, and Joe "King" Carrasco.

"One of the things our film does is to advocate total communication because some can never master cohesive speech."

"One stereotype is that those who don't speak have inferior thinking capabilities. Intelligence is equated with speech. Yet the deaf women in the film are very bright — their intelligence shows through."

"I'm very satisfied with the film. It shows how access can be accomplished."

Obviously "See What I Say" represents a major achievement for three teachers producing their first major film. Chapman has taught filmmaking and media productions at Wayne Memorial for 13 years while LeBlanc is a film instructor at Woodhaven High School. Stevens does her teaching in Wisconsin.

On March 29 the trio plans to be in California for the Academy Awards ceremony. Not bad company for three filmmakers who sold light bulbs to help finance their documentary.

"The film could have been made in a matter of months instead of years except for financing," Chapman declared. "Our friends helped us sell $4,000 worth of light bulbs in three states to raise money. And when the film was done we put it in the refrigerator for a few weeks until we could get the funds to get it processed."

Funding won't be quite such a problem for future ventures, she admitted, considering the critical acclaim of "See What I Say." And should the film capture the Academy Award, well...

"I'd like to do a film documenting the lives of teachers outside of school," said Chapman, who is single and resides in Ypsilanti. "It would be something positive about the profession."

But for now, all thoughts are on California and her big day as a filmmaker.

"My students' support has kept me going," she admitted. "The seniors have heard me talk about this since they were sophomores."

"There's some fine light bulb salesmen among them," she laughed.

Popular musical coming to Plymouth

The longest running musical in history is coming to Plymouth.

"The Fantasticks," which was first performed in a small Greenwich Village theatre and later became an international success in 14 languages, will be offered by the Plymouth Theatre Guild on March 5 and 6, 12 and 13 at 8 p.m. at the Central Middle School, 650 Church, Plymouth.

Michael Gross of Westland will serve as musical director for a cast that includes several local performers. Gross has been the musical director of the Plymouth Community Chorus since 1978.

Canton residents featured in the musical are Linda Pavey-Amerman, Paul Cyburt and Tobin Hissong.

Pavey-Amerman, a member of the Plymouth Theatre Guild's board of directors, will portray a mute in "The Fantasticks" as will Cyburt, a junior at Divine Child High School. Hissong is cast as Mortimer, the latest in a long list of stage credits that includes work with community theatre groups in Wayne-Westland, Dearborn and Plymouth.

Tickets, priced at $4.50 for adults and $3.50 for students and senior citizens, are available at the Plymouth Cultural Center or by calling 455-4755. Group rates are offered.

All proceeds from the March 5 performance will be donated to the Plymouth-Canton Civitans.

The Red Apple

Breakfast, lunch and dinner are served at all times

By DENNIS NIEMIEC
Feature Editor

At one time or another everyone has had the urge to eat breakfast at 4 p.m. or lunch at 9 p.m. or maybe dinner at 1 a.m.

The Red Apple Restaurant, located at 32711 Michigan Ave. in Wayne, knows the feeling well. It aims to please all types of fickle taste buds by serving breakfast, lunch and dinner 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"People can order whatever they want from the menu at all times," noted Manager Valda Strunk. "It's really no problem, that's why I can't understand those places who serve breakfast only in the morning. We're prepared to fix anything on our menu."

No small feat considering the approximately 180 entrees featured at The Red Apple, which also boasts locations in Belleville (60 Main Street) and Warren. Diversified offerings can range from a peanut butter and jelly sandwich for the youngster to a king size New York cut sirloin for the big appetite.

Each day a number of specials are added to the menu with an emphasis on meals priced for the family budget.

For lunch the specials average $2.95 in price and include french fries, soup and cole slaw. Dinner cost savers range from $3.50-$3.95 and include soup, salad or cole slaw, jello, roll and butter. One of the breakfast highlights, available each day, is a $2 meal of two eggs, bacon or sausage and hash browns.

"Our portions are much larger than other restaurants," said Strunk, who resides in Wayne. "And we don't use pre-portioned servings."

Remodeled with spacious dining areas of booths and tables, The Red Apple also has two banquet rooms available, seating 125 and 50 persons. Reduced rates for women's clubs are featured (call 722-4100 for reservations).

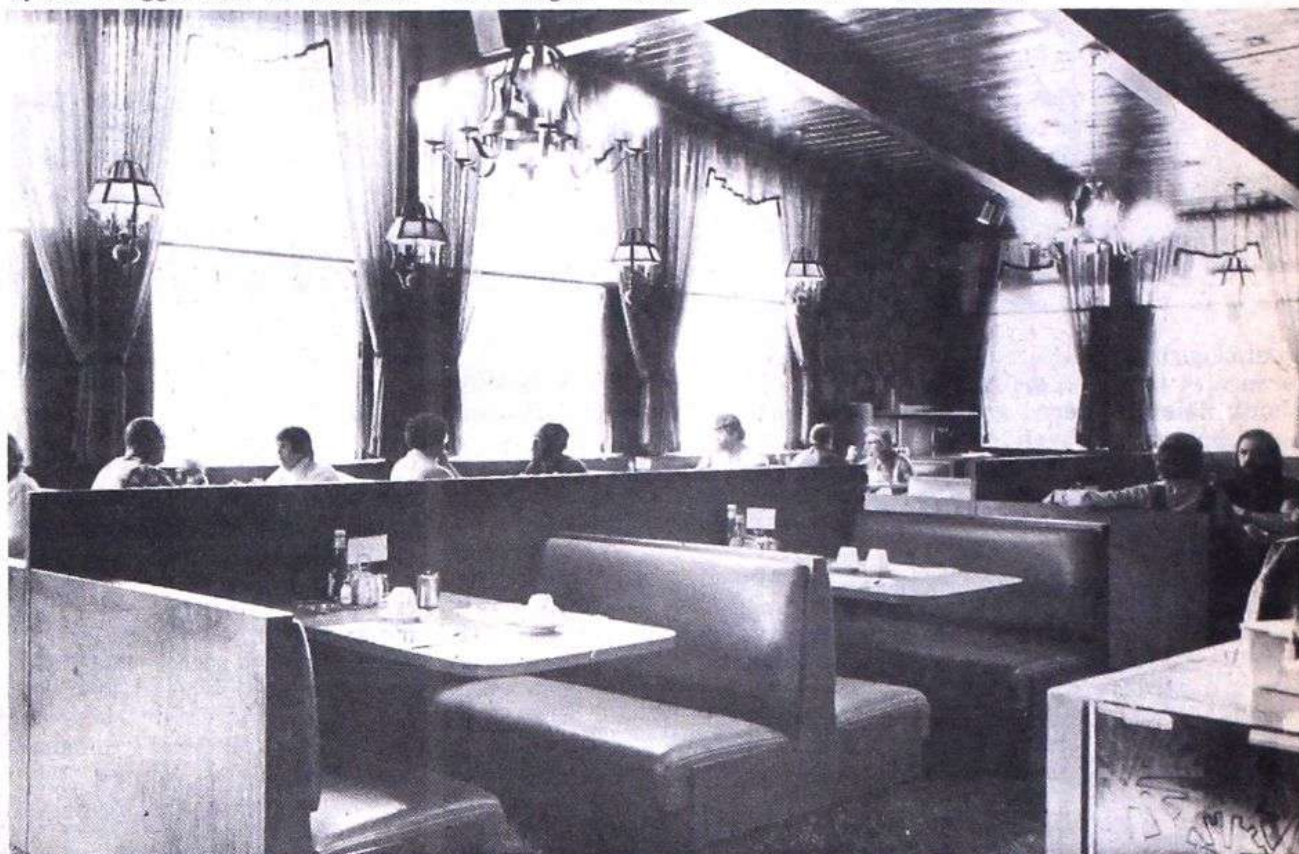

Owner Mike Dobrushi of Canton Township has brought the home-cooked meal concept to his restaurants. Having formerly run a Red Apple in Chicago, Dobrushi got the idea for his eatery while in France some years ago. The idea has obviously caught on.

A recent look at The Red Apple menu offered something for just about everyone, from the Gyro sandwich ($3.95), a combination of lamb and beef with fries and salad included, to the Steak Hoagie ($4.75), to the farmer's omelette ($3.35) with hash browns tucked inside to the fried chicken ($4.75) to the home-made pies (85 cents) to the all you-can-eat fish and chips special on Fridays ($3.75) to the ...well the eyes are bigger than the stomach.

"We might not have the name identification of the large food chains but being smaller has a lot of advantages," Strunk maintained.

"It gives us better control of the food and service." And the hours of business aren't bad either.

Open for business 24 hours a day.

Area reaps 8 regional gold medals

Salem's heavyweight ruled ineligible for regional mat meet

Although it may have made a difference in the point spread, Plymouth Salem suffered a tournament-shattering setback before the Class A Regional Championships held over the weekend at Ann Arbor Huron.

Coach Ron Krueger's heavyweight, Scotty Piper, was ruled ineligible after qualifying in the districts at Bedford. Piper finished second at the district and earned a right to compete in the regionals.

However, the 17-year-old tough senior was forced to the sidelines in the regionals because he forfeited the final match. It seems that the Michigan High School Athletic Association rules stipulate that a wrestler who forfeits in the final is not eligible to compete at the regional, unless that forfeit is due to an injury sustained during the bout.

Piper failed to show up for the district finals when the car he was in was involved in an accident. According to Krueger, Scotty and his mother had taken a break before the finals and the car Mrs. Piper was driving was involved in an accident. The young wrestler wasn't injured, but he didn't make it back in time for the championship round.

With Piper, Salem may have challenged regional champ, Bedford, for the title. Area wrestling fans believed that Piper was the "heavyweight to beat" at the regional and at the state.

Bedford added the regional crown to its long list of accomplishments after amassing 98½ points. Wayne finished second with 71, followed by Salem (65½), Glenn (48), Westland John Glenn (48), Ann Arbor Huron (45½), Birmingham Brother Rice (36), Milford (32½), Waterford Township (31), Belleville (30), Romulus (18) and Plymouth Canton (10½).

Salem came away with two champions as John Beaudoin and Bruce Bachman captured the 132-pound and 138 pound classes, respectively. Salem also had a silver medalist in Randy Beaudoin (155) and a state qualifier in 167-pounder John Woodchuck.

Wayne emerged from the excellent competition with four state qualifiers as junior Dan Matauch earned a gold medal in the 119-pound class. Coach Don Haney's Zebras also were runners-up in the 98-pound and 105-pound classes with T.J. Harris and Paul Justice, respectively, while Joe Colaianne also qualified at 132 after finishing runner-up.

Glenn's trio of Don Forchione (155), Robb Paciocco (138) and Tom Gibson (98) will advance to the state finals. Forchione is wearing a gold medal while Gibson and Paciocco finished third.

Belleville came up with one winner in senior Mel Richendollar who was the top 198-pounder in regional will be among the favorites in that weight class for the state title. The Tigers will also take Dave Stewart, a 119-pounder, who finished fourth in the regionals.

Romulus' rugged senior Eric Waters, at 126, was the No. 1 performer at the regionals. He will be the Lone Eagle at the state, while Canton will be represented by 145-pounder Steve Hamblin, fourth.

Regional honors also went to two area coaches — Westland John Glenn's veteran strategist, Bob Lusk, and Salem's Krueger, who were voted by their peers as "Coaches of the Year."

Arch prep cage rivals clash

Some sardonic forces apparently were at work Monday during the high school basketball pairings—in each district where area rivals were involved—the "luck of the draw" has them tangling in the first round.

Cases in point:

- Belleville vs. Ypsilanti;
- Plymouth Salem vs. Plymouth Canton;
- Wayne Memorial vs. Westland John Glenn; and
- Inkster Cherry Hill vs. Inkster

High.

Need we say, or write more?

But that's the way it is as prep cagers conclude the regular season and prepare to launch the "second season" on Monday.

"I don't know if we have ever had a pairing with all our area teams involved against their natural rivals in the first round," said Tom Niemi, Belleville High coach. "But it's really going to be a delight for the fans."

What about Ypsilanti, coach?

"They're tough," Niemi conceded. "We have to be the underdog. They have an excellent team and they are on their home court. But, one positive thing about this—I'm not going to have to get my kids up for this one. We're always ready to play Ypsi."

The two teams will meet at 8:30 p.m., Tues., March 9 on the Braves' court.

In the meantime, Salem will be out to avenge its loss to cross-town rival, Canton, which beat coach Fred Thomann's Rocks in the Christmas tournament and also ousted the defending Suburban 8 Conference champs from the district a year ago.

Salem and Canton will shoot it out beginning at 7:45 p.m. on Monday.

On Wednesday, Wayne and Glenn have a return engagement that should bring a standing-room only crowd to Canton. Wayne turned back Coach Dan Henry's Rockets during the Christmas Tournament only to lose later in the season to the Westlanders. And Wayne hasn't forgotten the tournament-ousting defeat it sustained at the hands of the Westlanders at last year's district tournament.

Livonia Franklin drew a bye at the Livonia Churchill district where the host has to contend with another city power, Stevenson, who appears to be the favorite in that district.

Like Franklin, Romulus will sit it out during the first round at Ypsilanti. Coach Al Wilkerson's Eagles nearly upset the Braves a year ago, but if the "impossible dream" is to materialize this year the Eagles will have to get more production and points from their center and forwards.

In an Inkster classic, Cherry Hill travels south to Dearborn Heights Robichaud to engage Inkster's Vikings in a 6 p.m., Monday confrontation and Spartan Coach Dave Bogataj says, "the team to beat at our tournament is definitely Inkster High."

Districts are next

Area high school basketball fans have a treat—many of them, in fact—in store for them beginning Monday when for the first time in recent history all area teams are pitted against their arch rivals in the districts. The regular season came to an end Friday and it's now do-or-die for the cagers.

Community involvement is the philosophy behind the continued growth and success of the Associated Newspapers (ANP) group.

ANP is entering its 40th year of service to the 10 Western Wayne County communities that it serves through its six suburban weekly publications.

Associated is today playing an active and important part in the development of this area, both through responsible journalistic contributions, and also through the group's innovative approach to providing each of its publications with its own community identity.

The Associated Newspapers, through their six publications, represent the following cities, townships, and school districts as their official Legal Publications:

- City of Westland
- City of Wayne
- City of Inkster
- City of Romulus
- City of Belleville
- Canton Township
- Sumpter Township
- Huron Township
- Van Buren Township
- Wayne/Westland School District
- Inkster School District
- Cherry Hill School District
- Romulus School District
- Van Buren School District

The many local and national awards won for journalistic excellence speak well for Associated Newspapers' accomplishments.

With a commitment to community involvement, Associated has demonstrated a leadership role in bringing progressive programs to its communities which foster citizen interest and provide residents with access to their local and state elected officials.

Associated Newspapers has its heart in its community. Edited by local people, written by local people, and managed by local people involved in their community, Associated provides the example of what local newspapering should be.
